Part I

I am a transfer student from Green River College to UCSD with a high GPA 3.7. I find that high GPA is one of my greatest academic achievements. Apart from that, I have taken an active part in seminars, projects, and workshops. I have conducted minor researches in management science and realized that improved knowledge and skills will help me make a substantial contribution to the field. The research has broadened my horizons and enabled me to enter interesting conversations. Furthermore, I spend much time searching for the newest developments in the sphere of management. I have been studying hard to get financial support and receive a good grade in UCSD which would be my new academic achievement. My greatest personal achievement is effective time management. Until recent times, it was difficult for me to maintain balance between an academic and personal life. Now, I have enough time to visit the library, to meet my friends, to read favorite journals, and have a rest. I am sure that this achievement is beneficial to all aspects of my life.

What is more, I have proven to be an effective leader. I worked hard and learned a lot to obtain as much information as possible about the ways leaders act and deal with others. I have acquired profound knowledge that will definitely help me choose the right path in a diverse and highly competitive environment. Finally, I have always dreamt of traveling. Having visited many countries and places, I can surely state that dreams come true. Every journey provided me with unforgettable experience and life lessons. Moreover, I have become independent and responsible for all my actions. I am sure that my academic and personal achievements have made me a confident, responsible, and mature individual eager to develop and improve further.

Part II

In March 2015, I have joined the Chinese Union which has enabled me to reveal my talent in leadership. The Union has given me the experience of both applying my leadership skills as well as practicing my communication skills. I have always been a sociable person and I find communication to be my key talent. However, it is necessary to read a lot in order to be aware of different areas to support a conversation. I spend 8 hours per week in the Union. I have got valuable experience there as I successfully helped the organization to hold the 'night market' in the library walk to disseminate Chinese traditional food and culture. Sharing interest in everything related to China, including its culture, history, and way of life, I was happy to inform people about this topic. During the event, I helped to organize my team and prepare food for people. Apart from that, I assisted the Union in holding the evening party for most Chinese student in the university. The primary aim of it was to get acquainted with the local students. I participated in organizing and planing, and I did it effectively. Therefore, I revealed the talent in managing not only people, but also events.

Moreover, I have been interested in music since my childhood. Being a child, I have attended music classes and as a result, I can play the violin and sing opera. Although it was not easy to master that musical instrument, my hard work resulted in success. I enjoy listening to both the concerts of classical composers as well as the works of modern artists. Since music t inspires me and gives life energy to pursue my aims, I cannot spend even a day without it.

Part III

The personal goals include receiving a good education and becoming a valuable member of society. With this respect, getting a scholarship would improve my knowledge and make my academic life more effective thus creating an opportunity to enter a highly competitive business world. Another dream is to fulfill all my expectations. I aim at becoming a professional and respected person, yet not forgetting about honesty and morale. At the same time, I want to be independent and secure in terms of finances which is essential in the modern highly competitive world. However, to achieve this, a person should have clearly defined goals and be willing to pursue them. My other personal goals include studying hard to gain a degree, participate in all possible courses, attend tutorials, take part in conferences, and others. Moreover, I want to make deeper research in the field of management during the study. This will provide me with an opportunity to meet famous and successful managers as well as learn from their experience.

My career goals are also extensive. Firstly, I want to be a role model for all people working in the sphere of management. Deep interest in the research will help me to become one of the best in my profession. Secondly, as my major is management science, I intend to become a financier after graduation. However, career promotion is closely related to the desire and ability to develop, innovate, and compete. Since I am a highly motivated person, such quality will help me achieve this career goal and advance in my occupation. What is more, I want to launch my own business after I get enough experience. This will be the proof of my career achievements and satisfaction of my personal and professional goals.
